

Sociology Learning Journey

Sociology at Leytonstone School gives students the chance to examine the world around them, and critically evaluate the social norms and structures that we take for granted. Through studying topics such as families, education, crime and deviance, students analyse how bias and background can affect the opportunities that people are given, and look at how famed sociologists have tried to challenge these inequalities and make sense of our habits.

